BREAK LIQUOR RING

UNDER COVER PROBE
BRINGS CLEVELAND
CONSPIRACY IN OPEN

Imported Liquor Is Found; Raiders Arrest Ten.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 28.—Operations of a liquor importing ring which is believed to rival in scope the Superior industrial alcohol chain broken up here four years ago, were engaging the attention of federal officials today.

Under cover investigation of the ring, in progress for months, broke into the open when federal agents raided a suite of offices and arrested ten men, and seized $60,000 worth of wines and liquors.

Three warehouses, one of them a government bonded storage place, housed the contraband, the agents reported. All of it bore labels indicating it had been shipped across the Atlantic.

Federal agents expressed belief that the labels were genuine and that the liquor ring was handling first quality liquor, retailing it uncut and unadulterated.

Nine of the ten men arrested are held at central police station, awaiting arraignment before Federal Commissioner Martin J. Monahan.

The tenth man, an alleged "high-er-up" was released without bond, and instructed to appear at the offices of U. S. Attorney A. E. Bernstein today.

He will be questioned, it was indicated, in an effort to find out what arrangement made it possible for the ring to ship into Cleveland, store in warehouses here and distribute, for two and a half years, imported liquor, without molestation from the law.

First breaks in the investigation today indicated that it, like the Superior Industrial Alcohol probe, would lead into many cities, and involve public carriers, law enforcement officials, men of finance and day laborers.

Paul Hanson led the special crew of ten prohibition agents sent here by U. S. Prohibition Commissioner James M. Dorian to make the probe. They said they had traced all local operations of the ring to the "Browning Company," whose offices they raided Saturday night.

Shipments of liquor were sent here from the seaboard in freight cars in which legitimate merchandise was used as a cover for liquor stacked at each end of the cars, they said.

Trucks carried the stuff to the three local warehouses. Customers were served by leaving their automobiles at the "Browning Company" offices, they said.

The keys were given to drivers, who drove the customers' autos to the warehouses, had the desired amount of booze loaded in, and then took the auto to the customer at a previously designated spot. In that way the customer accepted all the perils of the retail transaction, and the "higher-ups" were relieved of any of the actual handling of the liquor.

Other agents already are pushing the investigation of the alleged ring's operations in other cities, it was said. The nine men held for arraignment here were booked as Harry Berner, Morris Komiser, Milton Sabad, Arthur Weiss, Julian Well, Samuel Grossman, Louis Cohen, Henry Ruff and James Perry.

BABY ORPHANED AT BIRTH IS ADOPTED

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 28.—The boy born to Mrs. Frank Giannamore, ten days ago, at the instance she died from a bullet wound inflicted by her father-in-law, will be adopted by Milton Elliott, undertaker, and his wife.

Consent to the adoption was given by Frank Giannamore, the father, who has four other children. He said requests for permission to adopt the child had come from many parts of the country.

Mrs. Giannamore and her mother-in-law were killed by her husband's father, Vincenzo Giannamore, January 17. Giannamore then killed himself.

Physicians, unable to save the life of the young mother, performed an emergency operation that saved the baby.

BUCKLEY BEING TRIED

EVELYN NESBIT ARRESTED FOR DRY LAW OFFENSE IN NIGHT CLUB

EVELYN NESBIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Evelyn Nesbit was in trouble again today. The former wife of Harry K. Thaw was arrested in a raid by federal prohibition officers in a night club on the fringe of Harlem, where she has been singing and managing a revue.

Miss Nesbit will be arraigned during the day on a charge of acting in concert with Harry Cohen, a waiter, in the sale of liquor. The raid was staged in the presence of some 400 who-pee makers, many of whom dodged to the exits in the excitement, leaving unpaid bills behind them.

Besides Miss Nesbit and Cohen three others, including Joe Ward, the proprietor, were arrested. The party spent more than an hour in a west side police station early yesterday before bail was arranged.

The leader of the raiders posed as a "big realtor" from Hartford, Conn. After he had dined and danced, he called in his assistants and the raid was on.

BOBSLED WITH SUPPLIES HAS REACHED ISOLATED VILLAGE

COLESBURG, Ia., Jan. 28.—A bobsled, laden with food and medical supplies, arrived here today after battling twenty-one hours to break the ice and snow barrier which has isolated 350 inhabitants of this village since last Thursday.

The bobsled brought only absolute necessities and the situation remained in a critical stage. Dr. W. E. Hoot, mayor of the village, said in telephone communications that unless roads are opened severe suffering would result within forty-eight hours.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY RESUMES SESSIONS FOLLOWING RECESS

House Will Battle Over
New Rules; Sign
Road Bill

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—The 88th general assembly will start upon its fourth week when the senate and house reconvene to-night after having been in recess since last Thursday.

Both bodies are expected to get down to work in earnest during the week, with committees of both chambers taking up consideration of pending measures.

Indications were that there will be no material let-up in the introduction of bills and that the total, now 226, will be in the neighborhood of 300 before the law-makers quit for the week.

Prestidigitators of the two chambers are expected to sign the $6,000,000 emergency highway appropriation bill tonight or tomorrow and send the measure to Governor Cooper for his signature.

Interest in tonight's session of the house will enter in the possibility of a battle over the adoption of new rules. The report of the rules committee is scheduled to come up for adoption, and an insurgent faction headed by Rep. Joseph G. Ehrlich, Cleveland, has indicated that an effort will be made to liberalize portions of the draft prepared by the committee.

The house during the week is expected to pass the Bender bill, cutting the tax on premiums collected in Ohio by foreign insurance companies, from three to two and one-half per cent. The bill passed the senate last week.

Hearing on the Herbert and Martin bills, to reconstitute the election laws, will be resumed by the senate elections committee Wednesday night. Senate labor committee is to hold its first hearing to-night on the Bender bill proposing more drastic regulation of private employment agencies.

TREASURER OF OHIO ACCUSED IN LIQUOR AND BRIBERY CASES

Federal Judge Hears Charges Against Official

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley went on trial in federal court here today, charged with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition laws and attempted bribery.

Buckley was jointly named with John L. Schrimmer, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, Cincinnati brewmeister, in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury last month.

The three were charged with attempting to bribe John T. Eckhart, assistant federal prohibition enforcement chief, for the protection of beer being manufactured in the Jackson Brewery, Cincinnati, of which Sperber was brewmeister.

Schrimmer and Sperber surprised the court by pleading guilty, but their sentences were deferred pending the Buckley trial. Sperber still faces a perjury charge, however.

The indictment relates that Buckley, Schrimmer and Sperber "conspired to defeat the national prohibition law by offering $300 a month to Eckhart to tip off certain breweries when federal raids were contemplated."

Conviction on all of the ten counts contained in the indictment would carry a maximum sentence of twenty-eight years and a $27,000 fine.

Schrimmer and Sperber are expected to appear as government witnesses.

PILOT FALLS 22,000 FEET, ESCAPES AND PLANS NEW FLIGHT

Wright Field Flyer Has Thrilling Air Experience

DAYTON, O., Jan. 28.—Undertaken by a fall of 22,000 feet in an airplane which burst into flames at the 3,000 foot level, Lieut. John D. Hadden, flight test unit, Wright Field, prepared for a little more aerial experimentation today.

Hadden refused to become perturbed over his miraculous escape and described it as "all in a day's work." But it was a day replete with thrills and drama for those who saw his plane crash to earth.

Hadden was cruising for altitude when his thrilling experience began. He reached 32,000 feet and unprepared for the highly rarified atmosphere (it was 60 degrees below zero) he lost consciousness.

Minus its guiding hand the plane went into a spin and fell, with its unconscious pilot, to the 10,000 foot level. Here Hadden regained consciousness but the plane was beyond control. Then a connecting rod snapped. At the 3,000 foot level the crash burst into flames and Hadden, with his parachute, stepped into space and floated to earth.

"When I revived," Hadden said, "I found my plane spinning and spiraling down at a terrific speed, with both motors wide open. My altitude was 10,000 feet. By the time I had the ship straightened out I was only 3,000 feet from the ground. Then the nose of my ship burst into flames. I dived out and pulled the string of my chute and floated to earth."

The plane crashed, a total wreck.

BRIDE IS MURDERED; HUSBAND IS SOUGHT

Five-Day-Old Honeymoon Ends In Tragedy; Wife's Bullet-Riddled Body Discovered In Snowy Field

HINGHAM, Mass., Jan. 28.—A bridegroom of a week was hunted today in connection with the murder of his wife, who was shot to death at the end of Lovers' Lane here on the fifth day of her honeymoon.

Search for Christopher Cullen, 36-year-old East Weymouth war veteran, began after the bullet riddled body of a woman discovered half-buried in snow in a field Saturday had been identified as Mrs. Cora E. Jacques Cullen, 39.

Assistant District Attorney William Kelly of Norfolk County planned today to seek a first degree murder warrant for Cullen.

Efforts also were being made to locate the .22 calibre rifle, six bullets from which penetrated the woman's body. Police learned that Cullen purchased such a weapon from Eugene Hutchinson, Jr., Weymouth.

Police believe Cullen, after purchasing the gun, deliberately drove his bride to the lonely section of Hingham and shot her.

Shortly after buying the rifle, Cullen went to Brockton and attended a wake, leaving his wife at their East Weymouth home. On his return he told relatives and friends that on the morning he planned to drive his wife to Lowell.

Next day, Friday, the Cullens started for Lowell, but never arrived.

Miss Walsh said the man released her and fled when her police dog attacked him.

Mrs. Harriman suffered a severe scalp wound. She was removed to a hospital. Her description of the attacker also tallied with the one of Miss Bucholz slayer. Her screams attracted a policeman and frightened the attacker away.

REPORT FIVE SHIPS IN DISTRESS; HOPE ABANDONED FOR ONE

Trawler Not Heard From; Cutters Battle Storm

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A fifty-mile gale, carrying snow and sleet, raged off the New England coast today as two coast guard cutters struggled to the rescue of the British freighter Silver Maple, one of five ships in distress. The imperiled vessels have nearly 150 men aboard.

Hope had been abandoned in some quarters for one of the ships—the fishing trawler Seiner—but it was hoped that the others could be reached in time to prevent loss of life.

The Seiner was due in Boston last week. She carried a crew of twenty men and now is believed to have gone down with all hands. Other vessels which had been unheard from after sending distress calls were:

The Italian freighter Capo Vado, with a crew of about twenty-five men, in distress about 1,000 miles east of the Bermuda Islands.

The Norwegian steamer Fernlane, helpless with a broken rudder, 500 miles southeast of Bermuda. She carried about thirty men.

The American freighter Dixano, aground on the south coast of Cuba. She had a crew of twenty-five men. She was believed not in great danger.

The cutters Tampa and Mojave were attempting to reach the Silver Maple, whose position was given as 750 miles east of Boston. There were forty men aboard the freighter. The vessel called for help Saturday and had not been heard from since. The cutters, in reporting the new gale which was whipping across the North Atlantic, stated they would not be able to reach the Silver Maple's position until early tomorrow.

The Silver Maple was enroute to New London from Europe.

"Passed Up"—that's the name of the new serial story by Roe Fulkerson, well-known author, which starts in THE GAZETTE this week.

This newspaper is pleased to make this announcement—because it means that a serial story of gripping interest will follow the present popular story, "Let's Live"—and because it is introducing Roe Fulkerson to its readers.

Fulkerson is no unknown author, struggling to make his name in the literary world. He has a career in journalism of long standing and diversified experience, and he writes both from the standpoint of a capable journalist of good fiction, but also with the outlook and viewpoint of the average business man.

Fulkerson is both.

He was born in the South but is a resident of Washington, D. C. by adoption and spent the first twenty-five years of his life as a business man. During the last of these years he did some writing for business journals and then retired to devote his entire time to writing.

Every day for more than sixteen years he has written one newspaper feature, "Andrew and Imogene," a half-hourly dialogue between a man and his wife, for ten years he has written the "Hotel Stenographer," a daily monologue by her, directed at the house detective of the hotel in which she works. He also writes a Sunday feature called "Sunday Morning Breakfast."

In addition he is the editorial writer of the Kewanee Magazine and of the Shrine Magazine and its successor, "The Crescent." He has always been active in Masonry, is a past grand master, past poet-laureate and a thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Mason.

I average a letter or telegram daily asking me to come here and talk to a large body of audiences and at dinners," says Mr. Fulkerson, "as I am by way of being a popular hot air artist and balloon jockey generator of the cheerful type, and can even make an audience laugh and have a good time at dinner, since the passage of the Volstead Act, which is no mean feat."

Thus you have a pen picture of Roe Fulkerson, whose story starts in this paper. From the wealth of his experience he has drawn for a startling true picture of modern life.

Begin with the first installment.

JEALOUSY IS BLAMED FOR AXE MURDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 28.—An axe wielded by a jealous lover, took the life of Christine Johnson, 30, here Sunday and resulted in a charge of murder against Sam Griffin, 35, with whom police said the woman had been living. Both are colored.

Griffin, surrendered after police had spent most of the day hunting him. He refused to discuss the killing, but was named by neighbors who reported the murder.

Police said the woman was Griffin's common law wife and that jealousy inspired the murder.

COLESBURG, Ia., Jan. 28.—A bobsled, laden with food and medical supplies, arrived here today after battling twenty-one hours to break the ice and snow barrier which has isolated 350 inhabitants of this village since last Thursday.

The bobsled brought only absolute necessities and the situation remained in a critical stage. Dr. W. E. Hoot, mayor of the village said in telephone communications that unless roads are opened soon suffering would result within forty-eight hours.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY RESUMES SESSIONS FOLLOWING RECESS

House Will Battle Over New Rules; Sign Road Bill

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—The 88th general assembly will start upon its fourth week when the senate and house reconvene tonight after having been in recess since last Thursday.

Both bodies are expected to get down to work in earnest during the week, with committees of both chambers taking up consideration of pending measures.

Indications were that there will be no material let-up in the introduction of bills and that the total, now 226, will be in the neighborhood of 300 before the law-makers quit for the week.

Pending officers of the two chambers are expected to sign the $6,000,000 emergency highway appropriation bill tonight or tomorrow and send the measure to Governor Cooper for his signature.

Interest in tonight's session of the house will center in the possibility of a battle over the adoption of new rules. The report of the rules committee is scheduled to come up for adoption, and an insurgent faction headed by Rep. Joseph G. Ehrlich, Cleveland, has indicated that an effort will be made to liberalize portions of the draft prepared by the committee.

The house during the week is expected to pass the Bender bill, cutting the tax on premiums collected in Ohio by foreign insurance companies, from three to two and one-half per cent. The bill passed the senate last week.

Hearing on the Herbert and Martin bills, to recodify the election laws, will be resumed by the senate elections committee Wednesday night. Senate labor committee is to hold its first hearing tonight on the Bender bill proposing more drastic regulation of private employment agencies.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 28.—The boy born to Mrs. Frank Giannamore, ten days ago, at the instant she died from a bullet wound inflicted by her father-in-law, will be adopted by Milton Elliott, undertaker, and his wife.

Consent to the adoption was given by Frank Giannamore, the father, who has four other children. He said requests for permission to adopt the child had come from many parts of the country.

Mrs. Giannamore and her mother-in-law were killed by her husband's father, Vincenzo Giannamore, January 17. Giannamore then killed himself.

Physicians, unable to save the life of the young mother, performed an emergency operation that saved the baby.

RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION APPROACHES

Senator Fess Says Senate Committee Will Report Favorably On His Bill Approving Unification.

(Editor's note: Consolidation of the railroads into more unified systems is now, after several years of discussion, reaching the stage of mature development. This will constitute a stage in the development of the nation's railroads, the most important since the era of railroad building which resulted in spanning the continent by rail.

Following is the first of two dispatches describing the broad outlines of the consolidation situation. The second dispatch will describe the important and colorful personalities involved.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Railroad consolidation, one of the most important and vexing questions that has faced the Coolidge administration, is believed by railway authorities here to be approaching some definite solution.

Both President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover are anxious to have the legislative angle of the merger problem cleared up prior to next March 4. The administration is pushing a movement in congress to have action this session on the pending Fess and Parker bills.

These identical bills would permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve a general unification plan proposed by railroads. In the transportation act of 1920 was a much debated clause requiring the commission to formulate a plan for the unification of the railroads.

BELIEVE HOOVER FAVORS BIG NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Chairman Britten of the house naval affairs committee today reiterated his stand that he believed Hoover favored retention of the time clause in the pending cruiser bill. "A first class navy means steel ships, not paper ones," Britten said. "Mr. Hoover in our recent conversation strongly indicated he was for a strong navy and this gave me the impression and led me to believe he favored the time clause."

THE FIRST SHALL BE LAST

ELYRIA, Jan. 28.—The first Mrs. Albert Klues of Amherst is now the third Mrs. Albert Klues and her first husband is now her fourth.

The couple was married for the second time by J. S. George, Elyria justice of peace.

Justice George remarked that he would not need to give them instructions.

"Oh, no, we know all about it," they assured him.

STILL NO HULLABALOO!

National Capital Takes Hoover Return Calmly
But Shouts Over Al Smith.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—"Mr. Hoover has his offices at the Hotel So-and-so but he prefers not to have the general public know it." It was a pretty unsophisticated member of the president-elect's group of close personal friends who furnished me with this piece of information as an "inside tip" during the Hoovers' stay in Washington, following their recent return from Latin America.

That Mr. Hoover had chosen the third floor of the Hotel So-and-so for his pre-presidential business headquarters in the capital probably was well known as far away as the vicinity of the south pole, where Commander Dick Byrd and friends are spending the winter. Nevertheless, it was surprising how calmly Washington accepted the Hoover family's presence in its midst.

and publish a general merger plan for the nation's railways. All subsequent mergers were to conform to this general plan drafted by the government body. For various reasons, the commission has never promulgated a complete plan and has three times asked congress to be relieved of this duty.

Passage of either the Fess or Parker bill, it is generally agreed, would be the first major step toward completion of a national consolidation plan taking care of all major and short line railroads. Senator Fess, Rep., Ohio, has said a senate subcommittee is prepared to make a favorable report on his bill. Shippers, he added, are backing the bill, but railway executives are not a unit behind it.

The most important individual merger now pending before the commission was settled Sunday when the commission authorized the New York Central to acquire, under 90-year leases, the roads forming the "Big Four" system. The merged properties will form a system 11,000 miles long, extending from New York to Chicago and with wide ramifications in middle-western and eastern states and Canada. Six short lines will also be part of the system when the merger is effected under terms of the commission's authorization.

Issuance of the commission's decision in the New York Central unification came just twenty-four hours after President Coolidge had let it be known that he is impatient with dilatory tactics of the commission. The White House viewpoint also favored action on a general unification plan.

President Coolidge's reported expression, together with the known attitude of Mr. Hoover, are considered here to point toward some disposition of the merger problem in either this administration or early in the next. In public speeches, Hoover has frequently described railway consolidation as a "national necessity." He was also active in farming terms of the Fess and Parker bills.

AMERICAN LEGION

NEWS

The important work before the American Legion now, and in the future will be the care of orphans of the World War veterans, and to see that proper homes are provided for them. It is the aim of the Legion that where a widow and children are left destitute, to keep them together, and to make this possible a five million dollar national endowment fund was raised, the interest of which is being used for this purpose.

The Legion points out that it is not a selfish organization; that whatever it undertakes or accomplishes is for the benefit of the general public, as the records show. In many communities land has been purchased by local posts of The American Legion, cleared, made into parks and dedicated to the community as a gift. Swimming pools for children have been built. The Legion points with pride to the number of memorial buildings erected by the posts, in which not only the Legion but all civic organizations in the community may meet.

Americanism as undertaken by The American Legion covers a rather wide scope, as the activities of that organization will show. The Legion calls attention to its Boy Scout and Junior Baseball programs, taking in boys between the ages of 12 and 17 to teach them fair play, obedience, patriotism, and sportsmanship, all of which help to build a better citizenship. According to the Legion, their activities are many and varied and are of vital importance to the entire citizenship of every community, such as the promotion of better public health conditions, providing educational entertainment courses, creation or enlargement of public libraries, establishment of public parks, tourist camps, free clinics, summer camps, ambulance service, assisting in the solution of traffic problems, erection of highway and airway markers, conservation of forests, maintaining fire departments, and sponsoring American Legion school awards. These are but a few of the many constructive activities carried on by The American Legion.

The members of the American Legion know the horrors of war, and therefore are heartily in favor of peace, as are all right thinking American citizens; but not peace at any price. The American Legion is in favor of an adequate defense to insure peace. It is also in favor of the Universal Draft bill now before congress, as a step toward peace. This bill gives the president of the United States the power to draft capital and labor, as well as all other resources of America in the event of war, and to fix prices for commodities and labor in such an emergency. This will tend to remove profiteering, the incentive for war.

BECOMES BRIDE OF FORMER XENIAN

"But my I knew that Konjola is a medicine that will surely end stomach trouble because I have completed a treatment and there is not a trace of a single symptom remaining. I am so thankful for the relief it has given me that I will always have the highest praise and recommendation for this remedy. Soon after I started on the treatment I noticed that my stomach did not cause such intense misery and I was able to eat without having to take a dose. Now I want to tell everyone that I can eat whatever is placed before me without suffering the least bit afterward. The gas bloating is a thing of the past and I am steadily gaining in weight and strength and feel just like a different person. Since the gas does not form I never have any trouble with anything. It is really a pleasure to sit down to a meal because I can eat the food I desire. I perfectly understand stomach trouble and my nerves have stopped bothering me and I so enjoy sound and refreshing sleep every night. That is my reason for recommending this medicine and I shall continue to do so every chance I get."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallagher Drug Store, 33 E. Main Street, and by all the best drug stores throughout this entire section.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Forty persons were injured, three of them seriously, today when a Rock Island suburban train crashed through a terminal bumper at the LaSalle St. station.

Cecelia Buckley, Margaret Georgis and Margaret Mahon, all of Chicago, were taken to a hospital where it was said their injuries were serious.

STOMACH TROUBLE BANISHED BY USE OF NEW KONJOLA
Forced To Live On Diet For Years; Now States That Every Ugly Symptom Is Ended

Thousands of men and women in Xenia have been relieved of many of the worst forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel miseries through the use of this celebrated medicine. Hundreds of others in this city are still

MR. R. H. KING

Photo by Canby's Art Gallery, Main St. suffering from these ailments, but every day more and more of these same sufferers are turning to Konjola for relief. Hundreds of statements have been published, many from this city in which they tell how Konjola restored them to a new state of health. Just a few days ago, Mr. R. H. King, 346 Chestnut Street, Xenia, made the following statement to the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia.

"I know that Konjola has restored my health after everything else failed to give me any relief," said Mr. King, "and for that reason, I think that others should know about it so that they too, may have the means for gaining the same relief that I did."

"For the past five years I suffered untold miseries from a disordered stomach and during all that time I never found a medicine that would give me a minute's relief. A year ago last October I was forced to give up my work and remain at home. I steadily lost weight and strength until I was a mere shell of my former self. After every meal I would blow something terrible from the sometimes it was very hard for me to get my breath. I had to stop eating all kinds of solid foods because they absolutely refused to digest, but would always sour on my stomach and cause that bloating. So I ate nothing but broth and soup and very little of either of these two. My nerves could not stand up under the strain and caused me to spend many sleepless nights. I really did not know what to do for myself and thought that I would go through the rest of my life in this condition."

"But now I know that Konjola is a medicine that will surely end stomach trouble because I have completed a treatment and there is not a trace of a single symptom remaining. I am so thankful for the relief it has given me that I will always have the highest praise and recommendation for this remedy. Soon after I started on the treatment I noticed that my stomach did not cause such intense misery and of course, I wouldn't think of missing a dose. Now I want to tell everyone that I can eat whatever I please before, me without suffering the least bit afterward. The gas bloating is a thing of the past. I am steadily gaining in weight and strength and feel just like a different person. Since the gas does not form I never have any trouble breathing. It is really a pleasure to sit down to a meal because I know the food will digest perfectly. Since the stomach trouble is ended my nerves have stopped bothering me and I so enjoy sound and refreshing sleep every night. That is my reason for recommending this medicine and I shall continue to do so every chance I get."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, 23 E. Main Street, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —Adv.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Nearly 2,000 men and women, arrested in Chicago's second week-end drive against the underworld, were paraded before detectives for possible identification as known criminals. Out of the 500 questioned before the regular "show up" police detained more than 200, announcing that 150 gun robberies had been solved.

Of the total number arrested 1,529 actually became prisoners, the remainder either being booked and admitted to jail or released.

The week-end drive covered the entire city. Detectives and uniformed police raided beer flats, dance halls, poolrooms, soft drink parlors and all known haunts of the underworld. Many were seized on the streets when they were recognized by detectives.

EAGLES AGAIN WORK FOR PENSION BILL

In accordance with plans drafted by the state committee at the Springfield meeting, the local committee was asked to call on Representative R. D. Williamson of Greene County to explain the old age pension proposal to him and ask his support.

XENIA MAY PROTEST CHANGE IN DISTRIBUTION OF GAS TAX FUND

Following the lead of other cities, Xenia city officials may file a protest against proposed legislation to deprive municipalities of their share of the gasoline tax.

Similar protests began coming into the governor's office Saturday from over the state.

Vigorous objection to the proposed law is made by City Auditor T. H. Zell, who asserted Monday that to deprive Xenia of its portion of the gas tax would create a serious condition here.

"It would mean that our street repairs could not be taken care of without saddling additional cost on our taxpayers who already contribute a generous share to the state and county from this fund," he said.

Indications are that many other cities will take a similar attitude. Municipalities now divide 30 per cent of the revenue from two cents of the gasoline tax on the basis of motor registration. It has been proposed that this share be taken away from the municipalities and given to the counties, which now divide 25 per cent equally.

During the year 1928 Xenia city derived $12,429.32 from the gas excise tax, of which $3,110.48 went to the inter-county highway fund for maintenance of through highways through the city. There were no expenditures in this fund during the year, but the operating cost of street repairs in the city amounted to $12,149.60. This left $9,318.84 from the gas tax to apply on street repairs.

Bodies of fourteen miners—horribly burned and mangled—were raised out in morgues at Bluefield today as state mining department officials continued to seek the cause of the blast.

The last of the bodies was recovered Sunday after rescue crews—working from opposite entries—bored their way through the mountain in which the tunnels of the mine had been driven.

It first was believed that eighteen miners were killed but four of the men missing checked in, reducing the number to fourteen.

An inquest will be held Friday and meanwhile preparations were going forward for a joint funeral service for the dead.

A coroner's jury viewed the bodies yesterday and five of them were tentatively identified, as follows:

W. A. James, Portsmouth, O.; Blaine Parker, Barbourville, Ky.; Arnold Frazier, Elsie Coal, Ky.; James Covender, Heller, Ky.; and Eustace Cremons, Rutland, O.

Both drivers escaped injury when an auto driven by Frank Robinson, 427 W. Market St., toward Xenia, skidded and collided with another car being driven by G. E. Seddon, Maysville, Ky., in the opposite direction on the Wilmington-Xenia Pike, two miles southeast of Xenia at 4 p. m. Sunday. The slippery condition of the road was blamed for the accident. Both cars were slightly damaged.

O. A. DOBBINS MADE PRESIDENT OF GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU

O. A. Dobbins, one of Ohio's master farmers and also one of Greene County's most prominent agriculturists was elected president of the Greene County Farm Bureau at a meeting of the board of directors held here Saturday.

Mr. Dobbins is a native of Greene County, having always lived on the farm where he now resides, on the Cedarville and Jamestown Pike.

He is a prominent breeder of Hampshire hogs and has been a popular institute speaker for a number of years. He is also looked upon as one of the most successful farmers in his community, his home being one of the most picturesque farms in Ohio.

"The Farm Bureau organization is honored to have so prominent an agriculturist as its head, to succeed Wm. W. Anderson, who resigned as official head of the organization to take up other work," an official said Monday.

Other officers elected by the organization were J. B. Mason, vice president, David C. Bradford, secretary and H. W. Eavey, treasurer. Messrs. Bradford and Eavey were re-elected, having served in this official capacity for several years.

LODGE WILL LAUNCH DRIVE FOR MEMBERS ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Xenia Aerie, No. 1639, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will launch a membership campaign by initiating the first class of 1929 at the regular meeting Thursday night, January 31 at 8 o'clock.

At this meeting plans will be formulated for an intensive drive for new members. Commenting on the coming campaign, George Killean, worthy president of the Aerie, said:

"Pennsylvania Eagles have challenged Ohio to a membership race to end June 1, 1929. At present Pennsylvania leads by less than 300 members. Ohio is confident it can overcome this lead, thereby making this state the largest Eagle state in the country."

"In the past Xenia Aerie has always contributed its full share and local Eagles are urged to enter into the spirit of the campaign to put Ohio 'over the top.'"

All Eagles are requested to be present for the initiation work Thursday. A buffet lunch will be served by the entertainment committee.

WAGING BATTLE TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE

FERRY, Kan., Jan. 28.—Men and science waged a valiant battle against disease today, feeding with oxygen and transfused blood the faint spark of life with which 7-year-old Margaret Brown has fought pneumonia and complications for ten days.

Margaret contracted pneumonia two weeks ago, later developing complications which rendered breathing difficult. Two Topeka brethren began administering oxygen and for ten days now the men, working twelve-hour shifts, have kept the little girl alive.

The firemen, Dean Way and D. W. Shubert, reported yesterday Margaret was losing consciousness. Dr. Paul E. Belknap performed a blood transfusion and said a second transfusion probably would be necessary today.

Dr. Belknap said it was possible the transfused blood and the artificial respiration might maintain strength sufficient to pass the crisis of the disease. He admitted however that the girl's condition was weaker.

AUTOIST INJURED
Davis Creamer, this city, received a slight cut on the head, when his auto and that of Harry Fudge, 239 N. Galloway St., collided at Market and King Sts., at 12:40 p. m. Monday. Creamer tried to turn off Market St. south on King St., and when he attempted to swerve out again to avert a collision with Fudge's machine, his car skidded into the second machine. Both cars were damaged. Creamer's injury was dressed by Dr. A. D. DeHaven.

SNOW BLAMED FOR SLIPPERY STREETS

Xenia experienced a renewed cold snap Sunday night accompanied by a light snow which made streets treacherous and presented a difficult problem to pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

A number of minor traffic accidents resulted but no major collisions were reported to have occurred despite the icy condition of the roads.

Clear skies and rising temperatures greeted Xenians Monday morning. Later in the morning the snow began to thaw somewhat and although clouds reappeared and snow flurries began to fall, the sky suddenly cleared once more and the weather warmed up again.

Cloudy and more snow is the forecast for Tuesday.

WEIRD RALPH WOOD CASE THREATENS TO SPLIT POLICE FORCE

DETROIT, Jan. 28.—The weird case of Ralph P. Wood, master schemer and bank robber or victim of a counter plot launched by his estranged wife, today threatened to split the state police into two camps.

Detroit authorities who have charged Mrs. Grace M. Wood with planning to kill her young husband to collect his $50,000 life insurance have already taken a widely divergent view of Wood's case than St. Joseph County officials who are holding him for bank robbery.

Oscar Olander, state commissioner of public safety and head of the state police, is due here today for a conference with Captain Richard Elliott.

Elliott arrested Wood and Cecil Holt Friday morning on charges of complicity in the $75,000 robbery of the Sturgis National Bank last December 17. They are being held in jail at Centerville, Mich. Holt's warning of the alleged murder plot against Wood resulted in the killing of Ambrose Haggerty who was shot to death by Wood on the night of January 7.

Another postponement of the examination is scheduled this afternoon because of Mrs. Wood's illness and the absence of Holt, the state's chief witness against her.

Captain Fred Armstrong, chief of the state police detective bureau, has stated that his investigation showed Wood had no connection with the robbery. Elliott's laconic reply to this has been to refer to the positive identification made by bank employees. One of the bank robbers had only one a.m. and Wood lost an arm in a traffic accident several years ago.

BURGLARY TRIAL IS OPENED IN COURT

Jury trial of John Thomas Mahoney, under indictment on two counts for burglary and larceny, began in Common Pleas Court Monday morning after being delayed for nearly an hour and one-half due to the failure of certain state's witnesses to appear on time.

Only three witnesses for the state were heard at the morning session and Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall declared it was impractical whether the trial would be completed Monday.

Mahoney and two companions also under indictment alleged to have been implicated in the theft of household goods from the country homes of O. A. Dobbins and Thomas C. A. Dobbins were stolen from the Dobbins home and a value of $200.20 is placed on the stolen articles from the Buck residence. Most of the loot has been recovered.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR SINFUL IGNORANCE—Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord.—Jeremiah 8:7.

"WILD YOUTH"

The present college-age generation of America boys and girls is staging a counter-revolt against the wild "revolt of youth" that marked the early 1920s, in the opinion of Jesse Lynch Williams, distinguished novelist and critic.

The youth that is entering its twenties today is not returning to Victorian primness and prudery, says Mr. Williams in the North American Review. But it is returning to good manners and moderation.

And the reason for the counter-revolt, he believes, is the natural desire of every generation of youngsters to be different from its immediate predecessors and to feel a sense of superiority to the "flaming youth" of five or ten years ago which is now nearing its thirties.

After extended visits to two universities and observations at New York society functions, Mr. Williams detects striking difference between the immediate post-war group and that which is growing up today.

"For one thing," he says of the latter, "they dance with daylight between them. Their parties break up at one o'clock. I saw no hip flasks, nor the effects of them. Those who attended the dances were invited—gate-crashing has gone out of fashion. Breaking the hostess' furniture is no longer considered an indoor sport, and, moreover, they even take the trouble to say good-night to their hosts."

In a practical, sensible age when great advances are being made in business, industry, art and science it is only natural that youth should wake up and have some solid, common sense too.

VICE-PRESIDENT ABODES

After March 4, Vice-President Curtis will put up at a Washington hotel. A ten-room suite doubtless will be adequate to his actual needs; but the rent of it probably will make a dent in his $15,000 salary and still leave the spread between his appointments and those of a $22,000,000 executive mansion and grounds, a matter for uncompromising comment on the manners of republics with their servants.

The fact that a vice-president may be called upon at any moment to occupy the White House has not yet seeped deep enough into the American mind to obtain for him the accommodations to which his position should be held to entitle him.

The framers of the constitution were perplexed at first to find some useful duty for the vice-president. The presidency of the senate was eventually given him as a visible means of earning his stipend. The nation found him a job; but he still has to find for himself a place to hang the second hat in the land.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

NO TA WEAKER SEX

It is quite the custom of public speakers making addresses to audiences of women, to be condescending and patronizing. They appear to go on the assumption that it is strange that women should be interested in affairs that interest men or in anything other than cooking and sewing. Any public speaker with common sense or with the ability to get the psychological reaction from the audience, knows that the average group of women listen more intently and intelligently to a speech than the average group of men. Women have a right to be insulted by the attitude of many public speakers—an attitude that indicates that the speaker feels he is talking to children.

Only the superior courtesy of women keeps them from walking out on such a lecturer.

EDITORS GUILTY

As to the "looking down upon women" attitude, editors of newspapers are no not without guilt. They mark several pages in the newspapers as "women's pages" and fill them with matter which traditionally is supposed to engage the attention of the women readers. The fact is that it is not so. In this second quarter of the twentieth century, to take any traditional attitude toward women. Women on the average are as much interested in peace treaties and warship programs as men. They have just as much at stake and are just as good citizens. Magazine pages or so-called women's interests in newspapers are frequently interesting. The writer of this column finds them so and would not care to see them abolished. But he labors under neither of two common delusions: first, that only women read such pages and second, that women's interests are in any manner confined to the reading matter on these pages.

CONCLUSION

After all, isn't it about time that women's equal if not superior intelligence is recognized by what used to be called a man's world?

APOLOGY

Not much good in apology if it's a mere matter of soft and gentle words. To be sure the form of apology is better than the form of continued anger, better than no gesture of sorrow. But apology which does not carry with it the conviction of a real intention to do better hereafter is only a bit of lubricant. No power resides in it.

U. S. NAVY ON PARITY WITH ANY OTHER URGED BY MILLARD TYDINGS

Senator from Maryland

Millard E. Tydings was born at Havre de Grace, Md., April 6, 1890. He was graduated from Maryland Agricultural college and obtained an L.L.B. degree from the University of Maryland. He began practicing law at Havre de Grace in 1913. Elected to the Maryland house of delegates in 1916, he served as speaker from 1920 to 1922 and was then elected to the state senate. He was elected to congress in 1922 and reelected in 1925. His term in the United States senate began in 1927. He served on the Mexican border in 1916 and was awarded the distinguished service medal. I feel that America with all its diverse problems and the conditions of the world being as it is, should keep its navy on parity with any other navy of the world.

It is obvious that an intelligent answer to the question before us demands that we survey the state of the world at this time. The relative naval strength of all nations; the possessions of the United States beyond its continental area; the stability, the character and trend of the governments of the world and their relations to the United States; our economic and geographical situation with respect to other nations; the amount of money owing by former governments to the United States.

This country now has constructed, or is in the process of building, 18 first-line cruisers totaling 155,000 tons. Great Britain has either built or is in the process of building 62 first-line cruisers of 380,540 tons. Japan has built or is building 203,955 tons, while France has 15 first-line cruisers either built or building totaling 132,883 tons and Italy has 18 first-line cruisers built or building totaling 167,370 tons.

Thus, in the number of cruisers either built or building, the British Empire, Japan and Italy exceed the United States. In the number of first-line cruisers the British Empire has more than three times the number possessed by this country. Japan has nearly twice the number we have. France has approximately the same number as we have and Italy has two more of this type of fighting ship than the United States.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The public utilities industry is a convert to open diplomacy.

In secrecy is dynamite. It took an explosion to prove it to the utilities magnates. However, these magnates are not the kind of folk who can't learn. One explosion was plenty for them. They know enough now not to want any more.

In other words, the allied utilities companies have hired a high-class professional press agent. Naturally the utilities like to be regarded as a bunch of philanthropists — benefactors of the human race — altruistic, disinterested, benevolent — all that. Government ownership — city, state or national — is their bugbear.

Formerly they depend on a lot of amateur propagandists to disseminate these ideas. The utilities' view was to get the amateur's view into text books — to have them taught in schools, from kindergartens up to the universities — to inspire literature to write them into literature — to make them as much a part of every-day life as food.

This plan of beginning with the rising generation, while still in its cradle, and keeping abreast of it until it closes its eyes in death, has the merit of being thorough, and, in its way, it's intelligent.

The only fault which has been found with it is that the present generation, busy paying the bills, has a right to know what is going on.

The amateur propagandist's theory appears to have been that what present-day folk are ignorant of can't hurt 'em. So the amateurs kept their operations hidden under a bushel as long as they could.

It worked all right for quite awhile, but then, one day, the utilities industry fell foul of the federal trade commission, and the commission promptly proceeded to turn the whole bag of tricks inside out.

The utilities magnates complain mournfully that the bag's contents, as exhibited by the commission, look a good deal worse than they really are.

Quite likely this is true.

It may be that there was nothing reprehensible about what the amateurs were doing, and that the sole reason why it appears to have been off color was because

THE MYSTERIOUS STRANGER

SPORT SHOTS

FRAMED BY PHIL

Xenia Central High School's crack basketball team, with six victories to its credit in as many starts this season, including three over Miami Valley League foes, will put in a busy weekend this week, meeting Middletown on the Middle floor Friday night and the University of Dayton Prep here Saturday night.

Buccaneer fans are looking forward to the Middletown game with anxiety and there is little doubt but that it will be a furious game. Xenia defeated Middletown here last year 28 to 24 and if Friday's contest is anything like the 1928 tilt, it should be a bumper. Ledford is the fellow the Bucs must watch.

Burden of blame for the so-called "stall" in basketball, a subject which has probably aroused more attention, favorable or unfavorable, than any other connected with this sport, is placed on the defense by Paul D. Hinkle, basketball coach at Butler University.

"Basketball fans want action. They pay to see action and therefore the 'stalling' offensive team is very unpopular. However, the fans all to take into consideration the fact that the defense may be 'stalling' by massing under the opponent's basket. If the defense is allowed to 'stall' why not allow the offense to do likewise? It would not be fair to make rules limiting offensive 'stalling' without also making rules prohibiting the mass territorial defense, which is no more than 'stalling' on the defense.

"I firmly believe the defense is entirely at fault in most of the slow, uninteresting 'stalling' games which have caused basketball much unfavorable comment. In all of these games, I think you will find the defense used a mass territorial plan and refused to come out of its defensive 'huddle'. When such teams have come out of this 'huddle' their defense has become disorganized, permitting the offensive to make many 'close-in' shots.

"A man-to-man defense is the only type of defense which can break up a 'stalling' offensive team. The players must be coached to catch the man they are supposed to guard any place on the floor, and as quickly as possible after losing possession of the ball. The defensive man must not retreat into defensive territory and wait for his man to come to him. Instead, he must go out and force the issue, making his man get rid of the ball or keep him from receiving a pass. This makes a game full of action, splendid teamwork, and marvelous individual exhibitions, both offensive and defensive.

"However, please do not misunderstand me. I am not in sympathy with the coach, who, knowing he is in for a trimming, has his team start holding the ball in back court and even when pressed by the defense, makes no effort to score. There have been few games of this type.

"Therefore, let us welcome this new type of 'stalling' offensive and rightfully name it the 'delayed offensive style of basketball'. Any time there is a lull in a game of this type, let us blame it on the defense, because rightfully it is the defense that is 'stalling' and not offense."

At least one member of Xenia High's cage team has foul shooting down to nearly a fine art. In six games to date John Gibney, guard, has converted nineteen chances at the free throw line into thirteen points. In the Miamiburg contest "Gib" missed his last free throw. Previous to that he had made eight straight without a break.

LEADERS MAINTAIN POSITIONS HERE IN GRADE SCHOOL LOOP

Relative strength of the competing fourth, fifth and sixth grade teams is pretty well defined at the end of the sixth round of play in the second annual Intra-City Grade School Basketball League.

DEMPEY STARTS ROAD WORK; EX-CHAMPION THRILLS FANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—There's a thrill for fight fans in the news from Miami Beach that Jack Dempsey has started road work again.

For most fans, the activities of the ex-champion are of greater moment than the plans of Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling for their heavyweight bout next month. Dempsey's vivid personality dominates the Florida sports scene.

"Just want to keep in shape," replied Jack in response to a query from the United Press today as to why he had begun once more the weary grind at daybreak, jogging along for miles along the sands with Jerry Lavadis, faithful little shadow, at his elbow.

But Dempsey in training is a momentous figure in the fight world, for all that. Dempsey in his shirt sleeves in a temporary office, dictating to a stenographer his assurance to importunate ticket seekers is one thing. Dempsey, bundled in heavy sweaters, pounding and panting along the beach while superfluous poundage pours from him, is quite another.

"I'm just a promoter now," Jack insists; but what if an unforeseen development should call him into the ring as a principal?

It is true that Dempsey has no immediate designs upon the person of either Sharkey or Stribling, but it is an open secret that the former champion would love to try accounts with Paulino Uzcudun, or some other slow-footed, dull-witted slugger with whom he could trade punches.

Young Stribling has announced his intention of flying to Miami Beach from New Orleans on Wednesday.

"Come by train. Keep out of the air," Dempsey once more wired the Georgian.

ANTIOCH GIRLS ARE LOSERS SATURDAY

The Antioch College girls' basketball team was made the victim of the tenth straight victory of the Jacquemar girls of Springfield Saturday night at the Bryan High School gymnasium at Yellow Springs. The final score was 32 to 21.

The contest was close until only two minutes of playing time remained. At this point A. Hall, of the visiting sextet, came through with three baskets in rapid succession and started the Jacquemar team to a decisive victory.

Antioch and Cedarville feminine teams will meet in a game next Friday night at Cedarville.

The Standard Oil Company cut to nineteen cents from twenty cents last Friday and the Pure Oil Company made the same price change.

FRAMED BY PHIL

Xenia Central High School's basketball team, with six victories to its credit in as many starts this season, including three over Miami Valley League foes, will put in a busy week-end this week, meeting Middletown on the Middle floor Friday night and the University of Dayton Preps here Saturday night.

Buccaneer fans are looking forward to the Middletown game with anxiety and there is little doubt but that it will be a furious game. Xenia defeated Middletown here last year 28 to 24 and if Friday's contest is anything like the 1928 tilt, it should be a hummer. Led and in the follow the Bucs must watch.

Burden of blame for the so-called "stall" in basketball, a subject which has probably aroused more attention, favorable or unfavorable, than any other connected with this sport, is placed on the defense by Paul D. Hinkle, basketball coach at Butler University.

"Basketball fans want action. They pay to see action and therefore the 'stalling' offensive team is very unpopular. However, the fans all to take into consideration the act that the defense may be 'stalling' by massing under the opponent's basket. If the defense is allowed to 'stall' why not allow the offense to do likewise? It would not be fair to make rules limiting offensive 'stalling' without also making rules prohibiting the mass territory defense, which is no more than 'stalling' on the defense.

"I firmly believe the defense is entirely at fault in most of the slow, uninteresting 'stalling' games which have caused basketball much unfavorable comment. In all of these games, I think you will find the defense used a mass territory plan and refused to come out of its defensive 'huddle'. When such teams have come out of this 'huddle' their defense has become disorganized, permitting the offense to make many 'close-in' shots.

"A man-to-man defense is the only type of defense which can break up a 'stalling' offensive team. The players must be coached to catch the man they are supposed to guard any place on the floor, and as quickly as possible after losing possession of the ball. The defensive man must not retreat into defensive territory and wait for his man to come to him. Instead, he must go out and force his man, making his man get rid of the ball or keep him from receiving a pass. This makes a game full of action, splendid teamwork, and marvelous individual exhibitions, both offensive and defensive.

"However, I am not in sympathy with the coach, who, knowing he is in for a trimming, has his team start holding the ball in back court and even when pressed by the defense, makes no effort to score. There have been few games of this type.

"Therefore, let us welcome this new type of 'stalling' offensive and fightfully name it the 'delayed offensive style of basketball'. Any time there is a lull in a game of this type, let us blame it on the defense, because rightfully it is the defense that is 'stalling' and not offense."

At least one member of Xenia High's cage team has foul shooting down to nearly a fine art. In six games to date John Gibney, guard, has converted nineteen chances at the free throw line into thirteen points. In the Miami Valley contest "Gib" missed his last free throw. Previous to that he had made eight straight without a break.

LEADERS MAINTAIN POSITIONS HERE IN GRADE SCHOOL LOOP

Relative strength of the competing fourth, fifth and sixth grade teams is pretty well defined at the end of the sixth round of play in the second annual Intra-City Grade School Basketball League.

McKinley 6B and Spring Hill fourth grade have the championships of their respective grades practically sewed up as neither team has been defeated in four straight games.

Interest centers principally in the race in the fifth grade between Spring Hill and McKinley 5B, which are tied with three victories and one defeat. McKinley 4A, 5A and 6A teams had not won a game.

Spring Hill teams will oppose McKinley 4A, 5A and 6A quizzets in the seventh round of play next Saturday morning at Xenia Central gymnasium. McKinley 4B, 5B and 6B teams will be idle. League standings follow:

Cedarville College's basketball team submitted to its sixth straight defeat and its tenth loss in twelve starts this season, at the hands of Wilberforce University on the Wilberforce floor by a margin of 34 to 23 Saturday night.

Wilberforce held a 19 to 12 margin at the half and also outscored the visitors in the second half although the "Yellow-Jackets" made a better showing in the last two periods.

Gibbs, high-scoring Wilberforce forward, was accuracy personified when it came to shooting baskets. He shot six field goals and four for thirteen points. Carter, center helped out with eight points. Allen and Smith shared scoring honors for Cedarville, each with eight points.

Cedarville's next game is a return contest with Hanover College, Hanover, Ind., at Cedarville Friday night, February 1. Two weeks ago the "Yellow-Jackets" lost the verdict on the Hanover floor 36 to 27. Lineups and summary:

SPRINGFIELD TEAM WINS ROUGH FRACAS

In a rough game marred by frequent fouling, the E. C. Denton basketball team of Springfield plastered a 41 to 29 defeat on the Yellow Springs Independents Saturday night at Yellow Springs. The game, played on the new Bryan High School court, was witnessed by a large crowd.

Springfield, former Springfield High School star, with sixteen points, led both teams in scoring. He was closely followed by his teammate and center, Rolf, who tallied twelve markers. Kirk made eight points, Dawson of the Independents, scored ten points.

The Denton eagles led at the half-way mark 21 to 17, but piled up points with greater regularity in the last half.

DEFIANCE TACKLES ANTIOCH TOSSERS

Defiance, which roosts atop the Northwest Ohio Conference ladder with three victories and one loss, is scheduled to meet Antioch College's Division "B" quintet in a basketball game at Yellow Springs Monday night.

Defiance left Monday on a twelve-day road trip during which eight games will be played in North Carolina and West Virginia. Antioch will be played Monday night and Rio Grande Tuesday on its way South.

Antioch's Division "B" team has lost three straight games to Capital, Rio Grande and Wilmington in the order named.

Bowling

The Downtown Country Club has climbed to a tie with Fuller Brothers for first place in the City Bowling League. It accomplished the trick by winning three straight games from the league leaders last Friday night, and also established three out of a possible four new records for league competition.

The D. T. C. Club team set up new marks for other teams to shoot at in high team total for three games, high team single game total and high individual three-game total. League standings follow:

DEMPSEY STARTS ROAD WORK; EX-CHAMPION THRILLS FANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—There's a thrill for fight fans in the news from Miami Beach that Jack Dempsey has started road work again.

For most fans, the activities of the ex-champion are of greater moment than the plans of Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling for their heavyweight bout next month. Dempsey's vivid personality dominates the Florida sports scene.

"Just want to keep in shape," replied Jack in response to a query from the United Press today as to why he had begun once more the weary grind at daybreak, jogging along for miles along the sands with Jerry Lavada, faithful little shadow, at his elbow.

But Dempsey in training is a momentous figure in the fight world, for all that. Dempsey in his shirt sleeves in a temporary office, dictating to a stenographer his assurance to importunate ticket seekers is one thing. Dempsey, bundled in heavy sweaters, pounding and panting along the beach is another.

"I'm just a promoter now," Jack insists; but what if an unforeseen development should call him into the ring as a principal?

It is true that Dempsey has no immediate designs upon the person of either Sharkey or Stribling, but it is an open secret that the former champion would love to try accounts with Pauline Uzcudun, or some other slow-footed, dull-witted slinger with whom he could trade punches.

Young Stribling has announced his intention of flying to Miami Beach from New Orleans on Wednesday.

"Come by train. Keep out of the air," Dempsey once more wired the Georgian.

The Antioch College girls' basketball team was made the victim of the tenth straight victory of the Jacamar girls of Springfield Saturday night at the Bryan High School gymnasium at Yellow Springs. The final score was 32 to 21.

The contest was close until only two minutes of playing time remained. At this point A. Hall, of the visiting sextet, came through with three baskets in rapid succession and started the Jacamar team to a decisive victory. Lou-tan led the scoring with fourteen points.

Antioch and Cedarville feminine teams will meet in a game next Friday night at Cedarville.

Four of Wesleyan's thirteen victories this season have been at the expense of Buckeye Association teams and one over Ohio State.

St. Xavier and Dayton are scheduled to meet Wesleyan before the season ends, but the Bishops have nothing to fear from them according to the dope sheet.

Although they have sailed thus far with a spotless record, the Bishops face a test next month. Fans are wondering if they have sufficient stamina left to emerge on the top in their remaining conference tilts.

The busy team this week is Wittenberg, meeting Denison Tuesday, Ohio Wesleyan Thursday and Cincinnati Saturday. In the only other game of the week Ohio U. plays Denison Saturday.

Defiance is leading the northwest conference with three victories and one setback. This claim is held only by a margin, however. Findlay and Toledo following closely behind with two decisions and one defeat each.

Dayton is setting the pace in the Ohio Conference, with two victories over Muskingum and Capital. Wooster and Muskingum are the real leaders, however, with four victories out of five games.

of Mrs. Elsie Keyes by the chest board of directors, according to an announcement Monday.

Many Xenians, in subscribing to the fund, specified on the pledge cards the filled out the month during the year in which desiring to pay their contributions.

It will be the duty of Mrs. Keyes, who will serve in a secretarial capacity throughout the year, to collect these pledges as they become due.

Too Much "Dosing" Lowers Resistance to Flu-Attacks

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system. Too much "dosing" especially in the case of children still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion. Nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe.

Rubbed on the throat and chest, Vicks acts two ways at once: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) by means of the medicated vapors released by body-heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages. —Adv.

Europe to U. S. In 3 Days Via Giant Dirigible

Members of Parliament having tea aboard the R-100 at her formal unveiling to the public. Inset, Lieut. George Noville, U. S. N., who will navigate giant air liner on her maiden voyage.

Dream of Ocean Fliers About to Come True With the R-100

By TOM EDWARDS

LONDON (HIN) — When "Slim" Lindbergh gambled his life on one motor and his knack of nursing a plane through the air to get him safely over the Atlantic to Paris he believed that his flight might point the way to the ultimate linking of the New and Old Worlds by regular air lines.

But his most optimistic guess was that it couldn't come before five years. Now, a year and a half later, his dream is actually on the point of realization—in a luxuriously appointed monster of the sky, fitted out with every comfort of an ocean liner.

Huge Bag Undergoing Tests
This amazing airship, now undergoing tests at Howden airbase, fulfills the most imaginative word pictures of the enthusiasts. Her official designation is the R-100;

her builder is Commander Richard Byrd, formerly of the Royal Navy. An idea of the super air liner may be had from a mere statement of her dimensions:

She is 709 feet long, 130 feet high and will easily carry 135 persons inclusive of crew, in addition to tons of mail and freight. Six Rolls Royce engines will drive her through the air at a cruising speed of 75 miles an hour.

Comfortable, Safe and Speedy!
Every detail of comfort, convenience, safety and speed has been attended to in her building, so that Europe may be said already to be only forty-eight hours away from the Western hemisphere. The R-100's maiden voyage will probably be made early next Spring, a tentative timetable for it and other early voyages having been made public as follows:

Egypt, 2 1/2 days; India, 5 to 6 days; Australia, 10 days; Cape town, 6 days; Canada, 3 days.

Navigation of the R-100 across the Atlantic to a mooring mast in Canada is to be in the capable hands of Lieutenant George Noville, U. S. N., aide to Commander Richard E. Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to the coast of France.

CHAPTER LX
Byrd was awakened the next morning by sounds of suppressed excitement going on in the house. She heard Tiny talking excitedly at the telephone, and at the same time trying to muffle the natural shrillness of her voice.

Byrd hurried out of bed. She slipped on her negligee and slipped and stood for a moment trying to get the content of the conversation.

It was a bright, cold November day. The sun was shining through the tree trunks like rods of sharp brightness penetrating their hearts with shining steel. About their bare boughs were lines of frosty white.

Then she heard Fred trying to drag Tiny away from the telephone.

"Go downstairs and telephone," he ordered her. "You'll have Byrd awake before you know it."

Then Byrd appeared in the hall. "For Pete's sake," she said, he whistled and still sleepy, "what's happened?"

"Jack shot himself last night," said Fred, taking out his handkerchief and drying his eyes which Byrd saw now were red and puffy. His voice was choked with tears.

Tiny took up the story in a trembling voice.

"Fred was downstairs," she said. "He couldn't sleep last night for worrying and got up before six this morning. The telephone rang about seven. It was Margy, and she said Jack had shot himself last night, about an hour after we left. He was in the house all the time, just as Fred suspected. She called Dr. Newcomb, but he was dead when he arrived."

And she was all alone all night," asked Byrd, appalled.

Tiny shook her head.

"I can't imagine why she didn't call us."

"Tiny's been trying to get Margy's line for an hour," said Fred. "I think we'd best eat a bite of breakfast and I'll chase right out."

As they drove up to the house, they noticed groups of neighbors and others gathered on the sidewalk looking curiously toward the house. The older women were exchanging their opinions with lines of deep disapproval on their faces.

In the driveway an undertaker's carriage stood. The conference was open. Margy was in the house with the undertaker and left him when they came in.

In the hard morning light, Margy seemed to have been worn thin with worry, but a different expression appeared in her eyes as if the light that was far within had at last a chance of shining through. She was nervous and unstrung, but she was managing things efficiently.

"I called you as soon as I could," she told them. "I collapsed after the doctor came, and he had to call a neighbor to come in and help."

"I'm all right now," Margy said. "I know that Jack was in the house last night. I knew that Fred knew. After you left I went back upstairs, determined that Jack wouldn't leave town. He had come to get some clothes and he was going to sneak out after midnight. I told him I wouldn't let him go. I said I would be the final disgrace to me and the children. Well, then it happened."

Margy suddenly buried her face in her hands and her slender body shook with convulsions. Fred's arm was around her and he talked to her as to a little child.

"Don't let's talk about it now," he said soothingly. "Let's think of him as he was years ago before—before—"

Margy nodded. She had already gotten control of herself.

She told them that Dr. Newcomb had stayed until just a short time ago, and had advised her to have the body taken to the undertaking parlors.

"Where are the children?" asked Byrd, tears still trickling through her thick, black lashes.

"They're next door," said Margy. "and every little while I hear them calling to come home."

Then Fred took charge of things in the big, positive way that he managed what Tiny always vaguely referred to as his "interests."

"Byrd," he said, turning to her, "you and Tiny pack up the kids' clothes and don't forget to take a few toys along—and take the whole kit and caboodle of them out to the house. I'll stay here and see what's to be done further in the matter of funeral arrangements."

The children shrieked with delight when they saw Byrd, and were glad to go home with her. Byrd held Peter on her lap while Joan and Jack sat beside her. They were still shy with Tiny. But before the ride was over, Tiny had persuaded Jack to sit up front with her. Byrd noticed how delighted Tiny was with this marked progress in their friendship.

As Jack slipped a soft little arm through Tiny's, a thought popped into Tiny's head.

"I know what we're going to do with them," she announced triumphantly to Byrd, "but the plan's too wonderful to spoil it by telling."

with," Fred said, in a tired voice. "This way we'll dodge the publicity."

Pat and Chet were there and offered their services.

"Let me come over tomorrow and take care of the children," offered Pat, and Byrd eyed her with a glint of amusement. Pat's whole attitude toward marriage seemed to have changed.

India came in, too. She talked to Margy alone for a little while, and left without trying to see the others.

Then Larry telephoned from the southern part of the state to say that he would come up just as quickly as he could get a train. He would stay as long as it was necessary to get Jack's books and financial statements into shape.

"Everybody's just wonderful," said Margy, with tears brimming in her quiet, grey eyes.

Chet and Pat left, promising to be over early in the morning.

Fred told Margy what she already suspected, that Jack had mortgaged away his insurance and she was not shocked at his confirmation of her suspicions.

She knew, of course, that Jack Duncan had left her without a penny in the world. She knew that instead he had left her thousands of dollars of debts.

But in spite of the dark years ahead of her, over her worn and tired features that had been stamped indelibly with the anguish of the last few months, and tragedy such as few women are made to suffer, there was a look of something clear and shining. An inner peace had descended upon her at last, which would give her courage to meet the disasters which Jack's acts had precipitated. Something rich and fine in Margy that had been stamped out through years of disillusion, was struggling back to the surface.

"My parents live on a little farm in Illinois," she began, "they are old and have just enough to get along on. I couldn't take the children there, I've laid awake a good many nights thinking about what would become of them. Until they're a little older, they might receive pretty good care in a children's home. I think I could earn enough to keep them there for a few years. I used to teach kindergarten before I was married."

Before Margy had a chance to finish, Tiny interrupted her.

Her eyes were bright with excitement and her hair straggled down more unevenly than usual around her shining red face.

"Would you trust the children with me, Margy?" she asked, tremulously. "Fred, how would you like a family?"

She turned toward Fred with exalted expectation in her eyes. "Margy, Fred, listen! I want the children to stay here. I love them already and I would treat them as if they were my very own."

Margy was overcome with the suggestion, and looked from Tiny to Fred.

"I hardly know what to say," she faltered. "I'd have to think about it. I've thought for a long time that I was neglecting my parents, for they ought to be looked after a little. I'm the only one they've got and they're all alone and old, on a little farm. If you took Jackie and Joan, maybe I could manage. I could live with mother and father for a few years and have Peter with me. He's too little to leave and I'd have to have one of them."

A she talked, they all had the feeling that it was a solution of their present problems.

"I've always wanted Tiny to adopt a girl and a boy," said Fred. "But she's always had a sneaking idea that she was going to have a baby or two."

Fred's eyes looked suspiciously moist, but he grinned at Tiny.

"Adopt them?" cried Margy. "Oh, Fred, I couldn't give them up entirely."

"No, of course you couldn't," he answered a little crestfallen. "Well, we'll be satisfied if you'll always let them make their home with us, won't we, Tiny?"

Tiny was weeping on Fred's broad chest, filled with joy and the prospect of immediate motherhood.

Byrd didn't attend the services, which were held quietly at the undertaker's parlors. She learned from Fred that Larry would be there and she didn't want to see him now. Fred and Larry spent most of the day in going over Jack's papers and preparing a financial statement. Larry left town again without attempting to see her.

Byrd stayed and took care of the children while Tiny and Margy closed the house. There was little furniture worth saving, and Fred disposed of the whole lot of it to a second-hand dealer. He arranged for the sale of the house through a local real estate company. It was plastered with mortgages, and Margy knew she'd be lucky if she got a few hundred dollars for her self out of it.

At the end of the week, when Margy was again free to take care of the children and go on with her plans, Byrd returned to the Kellys.

The strain of the last week on her nerves, already taut with the knowledge that soon she wouldn't be able to take a position and live the life as she had planned, independent of everybody, but would have to be taken care of, had begun to show in the loss of weight and the dark circles that hung like light cobwebs under her lovely dark eyes.

When she returned to the little room at the Kellys, her despair was complete. The four walls, grey and cheerless, no more suggested a home to her than would a dark mound of earth. Strangely enough, her own suffering seemed to pale into insignificance beside that of Margy's.

For the first time in her life, she had seen face-ache, suffering, naked and quivering, and the memory was a hurt she could not put away. Margy's fate seemed so unbearably sad to Byrd because there might have been times when the tide that finally engulfed her, might have been stemmed. And unconsciously she compared Margy's life with her own. Still, thought Byrd, there was little comparable about it, for her own life looked rosy and hopeful in comparison.

But stubbornly she put away the thought that right now she had the opportunity to change the whole current of their lives, hers and Larry's, if she would but do it. She would keep to her decision, she told herself, and never return to him.

And the next night she left for Jacksonville.

Europe to U. S. In 3 Days Via Giant Dirigible

Members of Parliament having tea aboard the R-100 at her formal unveiling to the public. Inset, Lieut. George Noville, U. S. N., who will navigate giant air liner on her maiden voyage.

Dream of Ocean Flyers About to Come True With the R-100

By TOM EDWARDS

LONDON (LIN) — When "Slim" Lindbergh gambled his life on one motor and his knack of piloting a plane through the air to get him safely over the Atlantic he believed that his flight might point the way to the ultimate linking of the New and Old Worlds by regular air lines.

But his most optimistic guess was that it couldn't come before five years. Now, a year and a half later, his dream is actually on the point of realization—in a luxurious appointed motor of the sky, fitted out with every comfort of an ocean liner.

This amazing airship, now undergoing tests at Howden airfield, fulfills the most imaginative word picture of the enthusiasts. The R-100; Huge Bag Undergoing Tests.

Navigation of the R-100 across the Atlantic to the mooring mast in Canada is to be in the capable hands of Lieutenant George Noville, U. S. N., aide to Commander Richard E. Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to the coast of France.

her builder is Commander Richard Byrd, formerly of the Royal Navy. An idea of the super air liner may be had from a mere statement of her dimensions:

She is 700 feet long, 120 feet high and will easily carry 125 persons inclusive of crew. In addition to her engines and fuel, she will carry 75 miles an hour.

Comfortable, Safe and Speedy! Every detail of comfort, convenience, safety and speed has been attended to in her building, so that Europe may be said already to be only forty-eight hours away from the Western hemisphere. The R-100's maiden voyage will probably be made early next Spring, a tentative timetable for it and other early voyages having been made public as follows:

Egypt, 2 1/2 days; India, 5 to 6 days; Australia, 10 days; Cape Town, 6 days; Canada, 3 days.

Navigation of the R-100 across the Atlantic to the mooring mast in Canada is to be in the capable hands of Lieutenant George Noville, U. S. N., aide to Commander Richard E. Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to the coast of France.

As Jack slipped a soft little arm through Tiny's head, a thought popped into his mind.

"I know what you're going to do with them," he announced triumphantly to Byrd, "but the plan's too wonderful to spoil it by telling it yet."

Fred and Margy returned late that night. All arrangements had been made and the funeral was to take place the next day.

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

CHAPTER LX

Byrd was awakened the next morning by sounds of suppressed excitement going on in the house.

She heard Tiny talking excitedly at the telephone, and at the same time trying to muffle the natural shrillness of her voice.

Byrd hurried out of bed. She slipped on her negligee and slipped and stood for a moment trying to get the content of the conversation.

It was a bright, cold November day. The sun was shining through the tree trunks like rods of sharp brightness penetrating their hearts with shining steel. About their bare boughs were lines of frosty white.

Then she heard Fred trying to drag Tiny away from the telephone.

"Go downstairs and telephone," he ordered her. "You'll have Byrd awake before you know it."

Then Byrd appeared in the hall. "For Pete's sake," she said, "be wiser and still sleepy. What's happened?"

"Jack shot himself last night," said Fred, taking out his handkerchief and drying his eyes, which Byrd saw now were red and puffy. His voice was choked with tears.

Tiny took up the story in a trembling voice.

"Fred was downstairs," she said. "He couldn't sleep last night for worrying and got up before six this morning. The telephone rang about seven. It was Margy, and she said Jack had shot himself last night, about an hour after we left. He was in the house all the time, just as Fred suspected. She called Dr. Newcomb, but he was dead when he arrived."

"And she was all alone all night?" asked Byrd, appalled.

Tiny shook her head.

"I can't imagine why she didn't call us."

"Tiny's been trying to get Margy's line for an hour," said Fred. "I think we'd best eat a bite of breakfast and I chase right out."

As they drove up to the house, they noticed groups of neighbors and idlers gathered on the sidewalk looking curiously toward the house. The older women were exchanging their opinions with lines of deep disapproval on their faces.

In the driveway an undertaker's carriage stood. The hall door was open. Margy was in conference with the undertaker and left him when they came in.

In the hard morning light, Margy seemed to have been worsted this with worry, but a different expression appeared in her eyes as if the light that was far within had at last a chance of shining through. She was nervous and unstrung, but she was managing things efficiently.

"I called you as soon as I could," she told them. "I collapsed after the doctor came, and he had to call a neighbor to come in and help. I'm all right now. You must have known that Jack was in the house last night. I knew that Fred knew. After you left I went back upstairs, determined that Jack wouldn't leave town. He had come to get some clothes and he was going to sneak out after midnight. I told him I wouldn't let him go. I said I'd prevent it if it killed me. I would be the final disgrace to me and the children. Well, then it happened."

Margy suddenly buried her face in her hands and her slender body shook with convulsions. Fred's arm was around her and he talked to her as to a little child.

"Don't let's talk about it now," he said, soothingly. "Let's think of him as he was years ago before—before—"

Margy nodded. She had already gotten control of herself.

She told them that Dr. Newcomb had stayed until just a short time ago, and had advised her to have the body taken to the undertaking parlors.

"Where are the children?" asked Byrd, tears still trickling through her thick, black lashes.

"They're next door," said Margy, "and every little while I hear them calling to come home."

Then Fred took charge of things in the big, positive way that he managed what Tiny always vaguely referred to as his "interests."

"Byrd," he said, turning to her, "you and Tiny pack up the kids' clothes and don't forget to take a few toys along—and take the whole kit and caboodle of them out to the house. I'll stay here and see what's to be done further in the matter of funeral arrangements."

The children shrieked with delight when they saw Byrd, and were glad to go home with her. Byrd held Peter on her lap while Joan and Jack sat beside her. They were still shy with Tiny. But before the ride was over, Tiny had persuaded Jack to sit up front with her. Byrd noticed how delighted Tiny was with this marked progress in their friendship.

As Jack slipped a soft little arm through Tiny's head, a thought popped into his mind.

"I know what you're going to do with them," he announced triumphantly to Byrd, "but the plan's too wonderful to spoil it by telling it yet."

Fred and Margy returned late that night. All arrangements had been made and the funeral was to take place the next day.

"We're anxious to have it over with," Fred said, in a tired voice. "This way we'll dodge the publicity."

Pat and Chet were there and offered their services.

"Let me come over tomorrow and take care of the children," offered Pat, and Byrd eyed her with a glint of amusement. Pat's whole attitude toward Margy seemed to have changed.

It was a bright, cold November day. The sun was shining through the tree trunks like rods of sharp brightness penetrating their hearts with shining steel. About their bare boughs were lines of frosty white.

Then she heard Fred trying to drag Tiny away from the telephone.

The Theater

By SAM LOVE

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Sooner or later the conversation gets to Lindbergh anyhow, and the latest Lindberghia concerns the difficulties of A. H. Woods, Broadway producer.

Woods has completed all his arrangements for bringing the Gaiety's drama, "Lindbergh," to New York from Paris, but he has hit a snag in the title of the piece. If he forgets to call it "Lindbergh," is he not? Yet, says the Englishmen's Foundation, which has the hero under its wing, has laid down a stringent rule that the name of Lindbergh cannot be used for advertising or commercial purposes without the express consent of the foundation.

After communication with Woods on the point, legal counsel for the foundation suggested that the colonel himself be approached on the subject. This, Woods is, kind about doing, knowing that the flyer's reputation, and indirectly his

Jeanne Eagley, star of "Rain," who is for the time being under the disapproval of Actors Equity, expects to return to Broadway next season in something mildly titled "The Sainted Virgin." — Bill Robinson, Negro tap dancer from whom Fred Stone did not scorn to take lessons, has had a song dedicated to him by Dorothy Fields and Jimmy McHugh. — It is called, "The Tap Dancin' Man."

Will Fyfe, recently arrived from the old country for vaudeville engagements, says that a pair of tights among Scotch acrobats means a couple of Scotch acrobats.

When Bebe Daniels appeared at a dinner party in Hollywood wearing an engagement ring and smiling devotedly at Ben Lyon, guests learned that the two were betrothed.

based on something a little more substantial, for instance, than Gene Tunney's. The play is, naturally, a laudatory one. Woods is very unhappy while he marks time.

The Marx Brothers, comedians, are almost as well known as Senator Tom Heflin. But few people, aside from the unknowns who make out theatrical payrolls, are aware of their real first names. They are supposed to be Groucho, Harpo, Chico and Zeppo, but really they are Julius, Arthur, Milton and Herbert. Arthur (Harpo) was christened Adolph, but grew up to be sensitive about it and took the name of Arthur. Although he wears a red wig, acts like a cruelly amiable imbecile on the stage, he is actually the handsome member of the quartet.

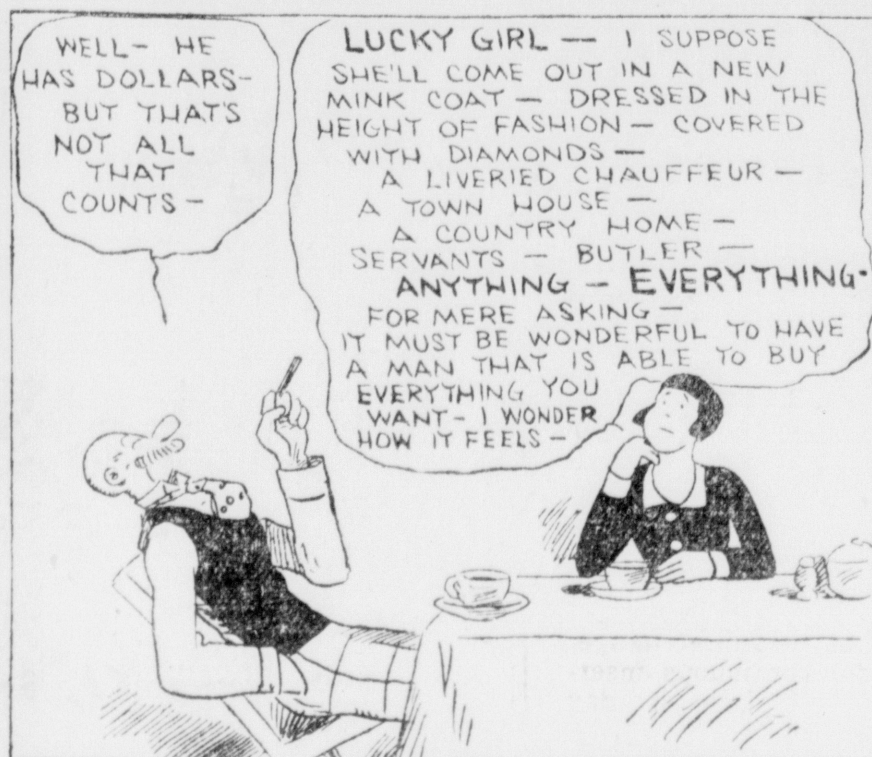

Chicago Marx will be on anything. Remark to him, "Pleasant weather we're having," and he'll reply, "Thank you." Pleasant traditions have grown up about the other three. Groucho once dared a boating audience of Scotchmen, who were throwing pennies at him, to throw shillings. Zeppo annoys young lady interviewers by pretending that he is slightly deaf. Chico is the only one of the Thana-topes who is not a member of the Literary and Inside Straight club who can win more than a bare fare off of Heywood Brown and can, for that matter, outwit any man or woman, regardless of her name or profile, every woman is Miss Benson.

With "Caprice" one of the few hits of the season, the Theater Guild is turning its attention to its major play of the year, "Dynamite," a play through which the capable, serious Eugene O'Neill is expected to crown the success of "Strange Interlude." Rehearsals have already begun against a background of a hydro-electric plant, to reproduce which Lee Simonson and Phillip Moeller made a recent pilgrimage to Stevenson, Conn., where hums the original machinery of the Connecticut Light and Power company that gave O'Neill the idea. Claudette Gilbert will be the heroine.

COUNTY TEACHERS MEET MAR. 2; WILL HEAR MORGAN AND SLUTZ

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, and Dr. Frank D. Slutz, Dayton, well-known educator and speaker, will address the meeting of the Greene County Teachers' Association at the new Bryan High School building in Yellow Springs Saturday, March 2.

SCHEDULE "FAUST" FIRST ON COLUMBUS PROGRAM OF OPERA

The ever popular "Faust," Gounod's celebrated masterpiece adapted from Goethe's immortal poem, will be the first of three operas to be presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company in its second Central Ohio grand opera season which opens February 18 in the new Columbus Auditorium. Edith Mason, the charming soprano remembered for her fine portrayal of the part of Gilda in Rigoletto, will sing the role of Marguerite. Charles Hackett, one of the greatest of American tenors, who sang the role of the Duke of Mantua, will appear as Faust. Richard Bonelli, the Rigoletto of last year, will be Valentine, the brother of Marguerite. Mephistopheles will be sung by Virgilio Lazzari, who so ably sang the part of Sparafucile in Rigoletto.

Sixty-nine years have elapsed since the first presentation of this masterpiece at the Theatre Lyrique in Paris, and it is today sung throughout the world more than any other five operas combined. Its American premiere was given November 26, 1863, at the Academy of Music in New York.

The story of "Faust" is a study of vivid emotional contrasts, a blending of religious tenderness and worldly sensuousness, brought to thunderous climaxes, which music critics declare to be the secret of its enduring popularity. Faust, in the initial act, is portrayed as an aged philosopher whose pursuit of knowledge and science has left his life bitterly empty. Just as he is about to drain a poisoned cup he hears in the street the voices of exuberant, youthful workers and is filled with a new desire to live. He summons Satan (Mephistopheles) to his aid and the Evil Spirit, seeing in the aged student a fool to wreak havoc among the innocent, bargains with Faust to give him youth and serve him during life. If Faust will give him his soul after death. The story of Faust entered into the bargain, doing the will of Satan in return for his soul after death.

JOHN HENRY BUCK DIES ON SUNDAY

John Henry Buck, 58, farmer, died Sunday at 12:30 p. m. at his home three miles south of Xenia on the Wilmington Pike. He had been in ill health a number of years, suffering from heart trouble, which caused his death.

Mr. Buck formerly lived on the Xenia and Fairfield Pike, but moved to the farm where he died several years ago. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Miss Velma. He was the last member of his immediate family. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the home, followed by burial in Beaver Cemetery.

READING STARS - By Laird

"Starlight, star bright,
Very first star I've seen tonight.
Wish I may,
Wish I might,
Have the wish I wish tonight."

Ever down the ages men and women have looked up at the glittering stars of heaven for light and guidance. We all have our planet guides, say the astrologers, which control our destinies. The young girl looks up to the glittering heaven and wonders which of all the bright galaxy is controlling her fate. And what that fate shall be, is love on the way? Do the planets prophesy joy or sorrow for her, poverty or riches? Possibly the "man of her dreams" is also looking up at the stars, trying to read there the promises of the future, striving to see reflected in them the face of his love.

SCHEDULE "FAUST" FIRST ON COLUMBUS PROGRAM OF OPERA

The ever popular "Faust," Gounod's celebrated masterpiece, adapted from Goethe's immortal poem, will be the first of three operas to be presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company in its second Central Ohio grand opera season which opens February 18 in the new Columbus Auditorium. Edith Mason, the charming soprano remembered for her fine portrayal of the part of Glis in Rigoletto, will sing the role of Marguerite. Charles Hackett, one of the greatest of American tenors, who sang the role of the Duke of Mantua, will appear as Faust. Richard Bonelli, the Rigoletto of last year, will be Valentine, the brother of Marguerite. Mephistopheles will be sung by Virgil Lazzari, who so ably sang the part of Sparafucile in Rigoletto.

Sixty-nine years have elapsed since the first presentation of this masterpiece at the Theatre Lyrique in Paris, and it is today sung throughout the world more than any other five operas combined. Its American premiere was given November 26, 1863, at the Academy of Music in New York.

The story of "Faust" is a study of vivid emotional contrasts, a blending of religious tenderness and worldly sensuousness, brought to thunderous climaxes, which music critics declare to be the secret of its enduring popularity. Faust, in the initial act, is portrayed as an aged philosopher whose pursuit of knowledge and science has left his life bitterly empty. Just as he is about to drain a poisoned cup he hears in the street the voices of exultant, youthful workers and is filled with a new desire to live. He summons Satan (Mephistopheles) to his aid and the Evil Spirit, seeing in the aged student a fool to wreak havoc among the innocent, bargains with Faust to give him youth and serve him during life, if Faust will give him his soul after death. The story reveals Faust entered into the bargain, doing the will of Satan in return for his soul after death.
